

2012 SUMMER INSTITUTES

Making Relationships That Help Students Grow

JUNE 19-24
BROOKS SCHOOL
NORTH ANDOVER
MASSACHUSETTS

AUGUST 2-7
FOUNTAIN VALLEY SCHOOL
COLORADO SPRINGS
COLORADO

LEARNING TO LISTEN For the fiftieth summer, the Stanley H. King Counseling Institute is offering independent school teachers a transformative experience focused on helping students navigate the adolescent passage. Designed for teachers, advisors, administrators and other school personnel, the summer Institute centers on deepening relationships with students and listening to them in ways that will support their growth and learning.

REINVIGORATING YOURSELF The power of the Counseling Institute is not only in its formal curriculum, but in a shared experience with other participants. Through presentations, small group discussions, work in pairs, and self-reflection, you will learn the tools to connect more deeply not only with students but with the larger purpose of your work.

CHOOSE FROM TWO BEAUTIFUL CAMPUSES

THE BROOKS SCHOOL in North Andover, MA, has a lovely New England feel, and
THE FOUNTAIN VALLEY SCHOOL in Colorado Springs, CO, looks upon majestic Pike's Peak.

Though the program is a full one, there is time each day to enjoy the recreational facilities or explore the area.

What would you do if. . .

- • • Megan's grades have been going downhill, and she seems less and less engaged.
- • • Sean wants to leave school and go to one "where there are people like me."
- • • Bill is rumored to be drinking every weekend.
- • • Lisa tells you that someone wrote "we all hate you" on her Facebook "honesty box."
- • • You find out that Kevin's father has cancer.
- • • Staci asks to change her lab partner to "someone who speaks English."
- • • Nisha asks you to change her grade because her parents will "flip" over a C.
- • • Jessica comes to you in tears and asks to leave class.

JOIN US for a summer residential institute, where we offer educators an intensive and transformative experience of learning to help students navigate the adolescent passage.
